You take great care in picking out the perfect present for your family and friends, why not bring that thought into wrapping the present as well? Here, six talented designers show us their tips and tricks for wrapping the perfect present, each with their own unique style. Check out their stylish ideas and shop the look.

Daun Curry

Designer Daun Curry turns to a traditional style of Japanese wrapping called Furoshiki for her gifts. "It's very easy to do and it makes it unique."

The style uses fabric that is tied around the gift instead of paper — a method that works well for presents of all shapes.

Wrap Your Gift With A Gift

"I love the sustainability of using a fabric instead of using paper," says Curry. She's even used a scarf to wrap the present — giving two gifts in one.

Use Jewelry As Adornments

Curry collects vintage costume jewelry and uses pieces from her collection to embellish the packages. "Sometimes the hostess ends up wearing the jewelry. It's a cute thing and a conversation starter."

Not a collector of jewelry? Make it your own in another way. "You can choose whatever fabric you like and use chocolates or flowers. You can really customize it."

Easily Wrap Bottles

"One of my favorite ways to bring a hostess gift to a party is to bring a bottle of wine or champagne and wrap it in a piece of fabric," says Curry.

Best Last Minute Gift: "Candles — it adds something beautiful to the home."
